Frequently Asked Questions

Will I need a skin test?

No. Radiesse has a biocompatible formulation. It will not produce a toxic or allergic response.

Are there any side effects?

Very few have been reported in clinical trials and in actual usage. However, you might experience some common injection-related reactions, like swelling, pain, itching, discoloration and tenderness at the injection site.

What if I'm taking medication?

If you're taking aspirin or other medications, please consult your physician.

Does it hurt?

Patients may react differently, so please check with your physician about pain management during the procedure.

Can Radiesse be injected over other implants?

If you have other implants or materials still in place, please notify and consult your physician.

Is Radiesse permanent?

No, the gel carrier dissolves within a few months and the structural microspheres are broken down through the body's natural processes.

Will Radiesse become hard or noticeable to touch?

No, Radiesse stays soft and pliable and will take on the characteristics of the surrounding tissue.

How long will Radiesse last?

A Radiesse correction should last around two years. Individual results may vary, affected by age, skin type, lifestyle and muscle activity.

Is Radiesse approved?

Yes, Radiesse is fully approved for facial augmentation with CE mark certification and a number of USA FDA clearances.

How quickly can I return to my normal activities?

Around 24 hours after your injection, most swelling or redness will have subsided. Some patients return to work immediately following injection, while others may need 24 hours.

If you have additional questions, consult your physician.

Contouring & Beautifying

Soft • Safe • Simple • Structure • Satisfaction

If you could ...

Would you like to have a more pronounced chin?

Would you like to reduce the indentation in your chin which has developed lately?

Would you like to have a younger, stronger look?

Non-surgical facial contouring and beautification!

Until now, changing the shape of your chin would have required surgery, with weeks of down time, swelling and painful recovery. If you would like to enhance your existing features and increase your confidence without invasive surgery, scarring or waiting to see results: Radiesse is your answer.

Soft, safe and simple!

Radiesse is an injectable implant which is soft, safe, simple and immediately effective. The cream-like texture of Radiesse stays soft, feels natural and remains in place for many months to years.

Because Radiesse is biocompatible you do not need to wait for allergy test results and because Radiesse is biodegradable it caters beautifully to your ever-changing facial aesthetic needs.

Radiesse is the ideal choice to shape your chin.

You can correct the contours of your chin, feel younger and more confident.

Treat yourself to a stronger look or decrease that indentation which has developed over years.

A non-surgical, non-permanent implant is the perfect solution.

Radiesse caters beautifully to your ever-changing needs and gives you immediate results which lasts up to 24 months making it cost-effective too.

What to discuss with your physician?

Discuss your options and concerns with your physician to determine and select which facial beautification and contouring treatment fulfils your needs perfectly.

It is important to understand that your physician will not be able to fix everything this way but here are some of the questions you may want to consider and discuss:

- Which part(s) of my face could I enhance this way?
- How long will the procedure take?
- How many treatments will it take to see results?
- How long will the results last?
- How much will it cost to maintain the effect for 1-2 years?
- What should I expect after treatment?
- What works complementary with this procedure?

Radiesse is your perfect solution because it is a simple and safe, in-office treatment that just takes minutes.
